Norfolk, VA. WVEC-TV13 today confirmed that effective December 31, 2008, Charter Cable will no longer provide its subscribers with WVEC-TV13's signal as Charter and WVEC-TV13 have been unable to reach an agreement as to terms. This action follows years of carriage negotiations between WVEC-TV13 and Charter.

"We are disappointed that WVEC-TV13's award-winning news, and local and network programming will be removed from Charter's channel lineup. It is unfortunate that Charter does not see the value in offering WVEC-TV13's signal to its subscribers. We remain hopeful that we can quickly resolve this issue with minimal disruption to our viewers. WVEC-TV13's signal is carried by other major providers that offer television service to subscribers in the Hampton Roads market," said Jim Berman, President and General Manager, WVEC-TV.

Carriage of WVEC-TV13's high definition channel is available on DirecTV and Dish Network. Additionally, WVEC-TV13's signal continues to be available over-the-air to viewers with a digital television purchased after May 2007. Anyone with an older television or a television without a built-in digital tuner will need to obtain a converter box by February 17, 2009, in order to receive the over-the-air broadcasts.
